
introduction

hello, i'm tom wood, a young graphic designer. i finished my graphic design degree at university college falmouth in july 2010.

i've had the pleasure of working with three top london design companies including fitch, kentlyons and intro, all of which have asked me to either return or extend my time with them whilst on placements, and in the case of fitch, offered me a position.

i'm hard working, professional and committed to doing every job to the best of my ability. furthermore, i am presentable (with no silly hair cut) and i'm determined to learn and develop quickly.

tom worked with us at kentlyons on multiple occasions. in that time he undertook many different jobs in the studio including artworking, advertising, brochure design and conceptualising projects in the studio and as well as doing photography. he excelled in all challenges we set and quickly fitted into the work ethic and studio environment. he was great to have around, always punctual and eager to help and provide interesting creative comment to the projects we had in the studio. tom's timekeeping and time management of projects was excellent and he provided a good body of work and ideas for each project he worked on. i had no problem with putting his work in front of clients without need to alter.

tom's hunger for design and furthering himself is inspiring, i wouldn't hesitate to have tom back in the studio and i know that the rest of the team here at kentlyons would agree. he also loves his potatoes!

james kent, kentlyons.
